

ANTI-BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION POLICY

1. PURPOSE

Lincoln Minerals Limited (Company) is committed to acting ethically, honestly and in compliance with all applicable laws in its business and operations, and has a zero tolerance for corruption or bribery in any form. The Company expects all persons engaged or employed by the Company and its Related Bodies Corporate (Group) to act in the same manner and not to engage in any form of corruption or bribery.

The purpose of this Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption Policy (Policy) is to establish certain standards and processes to ensure that all persons employed or engaged by the Group comply with applicable laws, rules and regulations regarding corrupt and fraudulent practices.

1.1 Scope of this Policy

This Policy applies to all individuals and entities employed or engaged by the Group, including all directors, officers, managers, employees, contractors, consultants and agents of the Company or the Group and any other person representing or acting on behalf of the Company or the Group anywhere across Australia (Company Personnel). When contracting with third parties, Company Personnel should have regard to section 0 of this Policy in particular.

1.2 Bribery

Bribery and other improper conduct referred to in this Policy is a serious crime and poses significant risk and reputational damage to the Group and Company Personnel.

To ensure that Company Personnel do not engage in activity that constitutes (or could be perceived to constitute) bribery or corruption, this Policy:

- a) explains the conduct expected of Company Personnel in observing and upholding the Company's commitment to prohibiting bribery, corruption and related improper conduct; and
- b) provides information and guidance on how to recognise and deal with instances of (and circumstances having the potential to involve) bribery, corruption and other improper conduct.

1.3 Further information and support

This Policy forms part of the Company's overall approach to anti-bribery and anti-corruption, which includes:

- a) the use of anti-bribery and anti-corruption clauses in contracts with third parties; and
- b) internal procedures relating to prohibitions on cash payments to third parties and strict accounting controls in instances where such payments are unavoidable.

The Company encourages all Company Personnel to raise any issues or conduct that concerns them with their relevant manager as soon as possible, regardless of how serious the issue or conduct might be. Details of who you should speak to for further information and support are set out in section 11.

3. ANTI-BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION

3.1 Bribery

Bribery can take many forms, is often disguised and may be difficult to trace or detect. Depending on the circumstances, it may include such things as giving or receiving:

- a) money (or cash equivalents such as shares, vouchers, gift cards, etc);
- b) gifts, including customary gifts;
- c) entertainment or hospitality (including upgrades, flights or accommodation);
- d) discounts;
- e) Secret Commissions or Kick-backs;
- f) Facilitation Payments;

- g) political contributions; and
- h) sponsorships (whether financial or by endorsement).

Bribery can be direct or indirect, meaning it can include using an agent or intermediary to make a bribe on your behalf, or making a bribe to an associate of a person you want to influence. The offence of bribery can occur even if a bribe is not actually accepted or paid, or if the bribe is unsuccessful (that is, where the advantage sought is not actually gained).

3.2 Prohibitions

Company Personnel must not, either directly or indirectly:

- a) offer, solicit, promise, give, request, authorise or accept a Bribe or any other improper payment in any form, with the expectation or hope that an advantage will be received or to reward an advantage already given;
- b) authorise, undertake or participate in any form of Corruption or corrupt business practice whether for their own benefit or the benefit of any member of the Group;
- c) offer, promise or make a Facilitation Payment;
- d) offer, promise or give any political contribution unless permitted by section 4 below; or
- e) offer, solicit, promise, give or accept a gift or hospitality unless permitted by section 5 below.

If you are unsure whether any particular conduct, behaviour or practice is acceptable under this Policy, you should check with your relevant manager before engaging in that conduct, behaviour or practice.

3.3 Community support

For the avoidance of doubt, nothing in this Policy is intended to restrict the Company or Company Personnel from providing general support to the communities in which the Company or the Group operates (including, for example, sponsoring local sporting clubs) so long as they do not do so illegally, unethically or dishonestly and there is no expectation on the part of the Company or any Company Personnel that they will receive a benefit or advantage in return.

4. POLITICAL CONTRIBUTIONS

The Company and Company Personnel must not make any political contributions (in cash or in-kind) to any Political Party. Examples of prohibited political activities and contributions include:

- a) sponsorship or hosting of functions or events organised by or associated with a Political Party with the purpose of raising funds, campaigning, launching policies or otherwise building the profile of the Political Party;

- b) free or discounted use of the Company's or the Group's premises, equipment or resources as an in-kind donation to a Political Party;
- c) paying wages or salaries of an employee of the Company or the Group who is working for a Political Party during normal working hours (except where the employee takes paid leave to undertake such work);
- d) using your position at or within the Group to try to influence another company, organisation or person to make a political contribution, or provide any other form of support, to a Political Party; and
- e) attempting to disguise political contributions prohibited under this Policy by using charitable donations or making contributions to organisations that you know to be affiliated with a Political Party.

Circumstances may arise where you are invited to attend an event or activity organised by a Political Party as a representative of the Company or the Group. This may be acceptable if, prior to accepting any such invitation, you seek approval from your manager.

You may participate in political activities in your own personal capacity, provided it is understood and made clear that in doing so you are in no way representing the Company or the Group. Such participation, including contributions of time and money, must be conducted entirely on your own account and your political opinions must not be presented as being those of the Company or the Group.

5. GIFTS, ENTERTAINMENT AND HOSPITALITY

5.1 General

Gifts, entertainment and other hospitality are often provided for a legitimate business purpose, such as building legitimate business relationships. However, they must never be used to corruptly or improperly influence business decisions.

Giving or accepting gifts, entertainment and other hospitality may pose a risk to the Group because it can compromise (or have the appearance of compromising) the exercise of objective business judgment. This risk is heightened where Government Officials are involved.

To manage these risks, the Company has developed the following rules in sections 5.2 to 0 for giving and accepting gifts.

5.2 Giving and accepting gifts, entertainment and other hospitality

Company Personnel may not give or accept anything of value (including gifts, entertainment or hospitality) to or from any third party unless to do so is in compliance with paragraphs (a) to (g) below:

- a) it is directly connected to a legitimate business purpose or activity (for example, building or maintaining a business relationship or continuing a business discussion over a meal);

- b) it is of an appropriate value and nature in line with common business courtesies and considering local custom, the position of the recipient and the circumstances;
- c) it does not violate local laws or norms;
- d) it is not in the form of cash or cash equivalents (such as vouchers or gift certificates);
- e) it is given and accepted openly and not secretly;
- f) the giving or acceptance of the gift would not cause a third party to form an impression that there is an improper connection between that gift and a business opportunity; and
- g) it otherwise complies with the limits and requirements of this section 5.

If Company Personnel have any concerns about the appropriateness of a gift, entertainment or hospitality which they give or receive (or intend to give or receive), they should seek prior approval from their relevant manager.

5.3 Gifts to Government Officials

Prior written approval of your manager must be obtained for any gift or hospitality given to or received from any Government Official, provided that gifts or hospitality of an insignificant value, such as promotional items (for example, pens, notepads, calendars and other branded items) or refreshments offered during a meeting, may be given and accepted without such prior approval.

5.4 Gifts to other third parties

Gifts or hospitality to persons other than Government Officials should never be offered or accepted without the prior written approval of the Company's Chief Executive Officer where the value of the gift or hospitality exceeds:

- a) A$300 per person in the case of gifts; or
- b) A$200 per person in the case of meals, entertainment and hospitality.

Gifts or hospitality of an insignificant value (including those referred to in section 5.3) may be given and accepted without such prior approval.

5.5 Gifts register

All gifts and hospitality offered, provided or received by Company Personnel must be recorded in the Company's Gift and Hospitality Register which is maintained by the Company Secretary, other than gifts or hospitality of an insignificant value (including those referred to in section 5.3) which may be given and accepted without being recorded.

6. DEALING WITH THIRD PARTIES AND BUSINESS PARTNERS

The Company carefully selects third parties with which it conducts business (including consultants, contractors, distributors, joint venture partners, co-investors, agents and intermediaries) (Business Partners) and seeks to ensure that those Business Partners also abide by applicable anti-bribery and anti-corruption laws. Any improper conduct by a Business Partner may damage the Group's reputation and expose the Group and Company Personnel to criminal or civil liability or other sanctions.

Company Personnel must always obtain pre-approval from the Company's Chief Executive Officer before engaging a Business Partner. As part of the pre-approval process, Company Personnel must conduct appropriate due diligence on a potential Business Partner, having regard to various factors such as the location and nature of the proposed relationship/transaction, the value of the proposed transaction, the third party's past conduct, the level of interaction which the third party might have with Government Officials on the Company's (or the Group's) behalf and the existence or otherwise of alternative suppliers of the relevant goods or services.

7. CONFLICT OF INTEREST

Company Personnel must use all reasonable endeavours to avoid business dealings and personal relationships which cause or may cause conflicts of interest with their relationship to the Company or the Group. A conflict of interest arises when a person's position within (or relationship with) any member of the Group or their financial or other personal considerations or interests affect, have the potential to affect, or could have the appearance of affecting, their judgment, objectivity and independence.

If you are involved directly or indirectly in any outside activities, financial interests or relationships that give rise to an actual conflict of interest or the appearance of one, you must promptly advise your manager and give them details of the conflict. Your manager will ensure the matter is properly reviewed before providing guidance on the appropriate steps to take in response to the conflict. Depending on the circumstances, it may be necessary to excuse yourself from any decision-making process where you have an interest that influences, or may be perceived as influencing, your ability to make an objective decision and to fulfil your responsibilities to the Company or the Group.

8. RECORD KEEPING

The Company and Company Personnel must keep accurate and complete accounts, invoices, and other documents and records relating to dealings with any Business Partner and other third parties. Company Personnel must:

- a) not make any false or misleading entries in the books and records of the Company or the Group;
- b) ensure contracts, invoices and other documents relating to relationships with Business Partners or other third parties accurately describe the transactions to which they relate;
- c) comply with all payment control procedures put in place by the Company from time to time; and

- d) comply with all requirements to record and obtain approvals for payments and expenses in this Policy (including in relation to gifts, hospitality, entertainment, charitable donations and political donations).

9. YOUR RESPONSIBILITIES

All Company Personnel must at all times comply with this Policy and take steps to prevent, detect and report behaviour which may breach this Policy. This includes looking out for signs or instances of improper conduct in connection with the Group's business and immediately reporting any actual or suspected improper conduct or other violation of this Policy to the relevant person identified in this Policy.

The Company strongly encourages Company Personnel to report any suspected or actual breach of this Policy. Company Personnel must not retaliate in any way or otherwise cause any detriment to any person who reports in good faith a breach or suspected breach of this Policy, and the Company is committed to ensuring that no person will suffer detriment in circumstances where they have reported a matter in good faith in accordance with the Company's Whistleblower Policy available at <http://www.lincolnminerals.com.au/corpgovernance.php>.

10. BREACH OF THIS POLICY

A breach of this Policy will be regarded by the Company as serious misconduct, and will be investigated and addressed by the Company. Depending on the circumstances, consequences may include:

- a) disciplinary action, including termination of employment;
- b) cessation of the business relationship with the Company;
- c) referral of the matter to regulatory and law enforcement authorities; and/or
- d) criminal and civil penalties or fines, criminal convictions and imprisonment.

A breach of this Policy could also result in serious business consequences for the Company and the Group, such as loss of business and damage to relationships.

11. FURTHER INFORMATION AND SUPPORT
